Focus on your child's self-control to improve behavior at school

Everyone wants kids to be well-behaved in school. But today, parents and teachers are often concerned about a lack of self-discipline in students.

When classroom instruction is continually interrupted by students who misbehave, no learning can take place. Students need a quiet, orderly environment in which to learn.

Remember: Positive habits begin at home. To help your child develop self-control:

- 1. Review the school rules and regulations. Talk to your child about them and be sure to support them.
- 2. Let your child experience the consequences of her actions. Don't always rush to bail her out.
- 3. Talk to your child's teachers about how she behaves in school.
- 4. Talk to your child about the importance of self-discipline at home and at school.
- 5. Show respect for your child. She will be more likely to respect herself and others.
- 6. Encourage independence. Allow your child to take part in making the decisions that affect her life.
